

PRODUCT OWNER [Paris, CDI]

About us

Earthcube is developing a monitoring platform based on an automated analysis of geospatial information. By combining state-of-the-art AI techniques in both Computer Vision and Deep Learning, Earthcube enables its customers to access more reliable and more precise information, thus enabling faster interventions for a safer environment. With 7m€ in total funding since 2017, our fast growth (x5/year) is fueled by international development (UK, Germany, US) and development of new product lines.

Your missions

As a product owner and reporting to the Head of Product, you will be dedicated to improving our products. Your mission will include:

- Drafting front and functional specifications according to the product roadmap
- Write down stories related to the specifications in agreement with the tech team
- Support internal teams for the realization of stories
- Test new features developed before release and validate their compliance with the expected specifications
- Benchmark - watch over tools, methods etc. that can improve the product- but also communicate to the internal teams about new features and changes made

Your profile

We are looking for open-minded people with a strong culture in excellence and delivering quality outputs.

The must-haves:

- Ability to understand highly technical products and work with technical teams
- Good communication skills, organizational skills and autonomy
- Efficient, results driven, rigorous and strong analytical skills
- Fluent in English

The nice-to-haves:

- Interest in new technology especially AI, data science and space applications but also in the Defense sector
- First experience in product management
- Good Nerf aiming skills

What we can offer

Earthcube offers a competitive salary and provides a great environment for personal development that includes dedicated time to work on side projects and develop new skills. We also offer the opportunity to work on a unique mission: unlock AI technologies for critical systems. We like to design products that actually make a difference for people on the ground in order to make the world a little less scary. Earthcube promotes diversity and mixity in its workforce, so whatever your background is, if you think you are up to the task and want to be part of our adventure, feel free to send an email at audrey@earthcube.eu!